our hotel

Step into the lobby of the Hampton Inn® hotel in Bardstown and give a toast to Old Kentucky. This town is known for our locally made bourbon, "My Old Kentucky Home." Yes, we're a spirited place, known as the "Bourbon Capital of the World" for our brown elixir and the Kentucky Bourbon Festival held here each September. But there's plenty to do and see near our hotel in Bardstown that has nothing to do with our city's liquid export. Our lovely little town in the bluegrass offers plenty of antique hunting, boutique shopping and fine dining.

where to go and what to do

At the Hampton Inn® hotel in Bardstown, we believe things (and people) get better with age. Our town dates back to 1780, and all that time has given Bardstown a flavor all its own. While you're staying with us at our hotel in Bardstown, check out Stephen Foster - The Musical, where you'll hear songs like "Oh! Susanna" and "Camptown Races," written by America's first great composer, Stephen Foster. Downtown's quaint streets host scores of specialty, art and gift shops along with beautiful museums. Take a carriage ride or a train ride; we have plenty of unique ways to get around.
