where to go and what to do

The area around our hotel in Shrewsbury dates back to 1739 and was one of the first towns on the Susquehanna. We're not far from the Mason Dixon Line, and as a result, from General Lee's invasion into the North. To that end, you'll find a Civil War museum at Hanover Junction, the railroad station where Lincoln stopped on the way to Gettysburg. It has been restored to its 1863 appearance. For some outdoor fun, explore the Heritage Rail Trail County Park, a 21-mile trek from the Mason Dixon Line to the City of York. The trail also connects to Maryland's Northern Central Railroad Trail. Hike, bike, jog, or stroll the beautiful stretch of former track.
