where to go and what to do

Local legend says that the faint glow of the old light bulb at the East Avenue Fire Station has been lighting the fireman's garage since 1901! Stop by and see the world's oldest light bulb for yourself. Hurry, before it burns out! Maybe you'll learn the secret to the longevity of the bulb at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory Discovery Center, where kids - and the young at heart can get a hands-on lesson in science. Most of Livermore's 20-plus wineries have tasting rooms open on weekends, and the Labor Day Harvest Festival is worth planning a vacation around for any wine lover.
