our hotel

Ever wish you could find that one-of-a-kind Gulf Coast town that's like a little undiscovered gem? Welcome to Saraland. In the early 1800's, the area that was to become Saraland was included in a Spanish land grant to Don Diego Alvarez. Hence the community's first name, Alvarez Station. In 1895, a retired minister named C.J. DeWitt opened the first post office in this Southern Railroad town and subsequently renamed the city after his beloved wife, Sara. Now considered part of North Mobile, Saraland offers all the charm of a small town within the big city. This way, guests at the Hampton Inn® Mobile-North/Saraland hotel get the best of both worlds!
