where to go and what to do

The Hampton Inn® hotel in Worcester is a city that dates back to 1670. At that time, folks called it the Quinsigamond Plantation-proving that there are names we could have picked that would be harder to spell. See some of our city's history by visiting the Worcester Historical Museum, which is just a mile from our hotel. In Worcester, we're also home to Quinsigamond State Park, which boasts swimming, sailing, picnicking, fishing, rowing regattas, a picnic area and tennis courts. You may notice a lot of young people wandering about town. That's because we're a hotbed of higher education.
