our hotel

Americus is a quaint, historic town graced with an abundance of antebellum and Victorian architecture. For its first two decades, Americus was a small courthouse town, and then with the arrival of the railroad in 1854, it became known as the "Metropolis of Southwest Georgia". If you're looking for a hotel in this hamlet, we think you'll appreciate the Hampton Inn® hotel in Americus .

where to go and what to do

You'll find many interesting things to do within just minutes of our hotel in Americus. You might know that we have lots of American history that took place nearby, stretching back from the Civil War through the Civil Rights demonstrations of the 1960s. In addition there's plenty of golf and fishing, but it's the history most folks seem interested in. In nearby (10 miles) Andersonville you'll find the famous Civil War village which boasts a host of interesting antique, craft and curiosity shops, along with a seven-acre pioneer farm, which depicts what life was like on a one-man farm of the mid 1800s.
